FOLK MUSIC IN BERKELEY

APRIL 18, 2015 | ANNA

Folk musician in Berkeley, Ray Bierl

Last weekend (April 11-12, 2015) we drove up to Berkeley to see a folk music benefit concert at the Unitarian Church. Talk about a blast from the past: I haven't seen so many tie-dye t-shirts in a long time!

One of the musicians was Ray Bierl, one of Dick's high school classmates whom he had reconnected with recently. As I understand it, they used to liven up their Spanish 1 class by singing Spanish-language classics in falsetto!

Rather than drive home late Saturday night we stayed over until Sunday, when we walked around the UC Berkeley campus and their botanical garden.

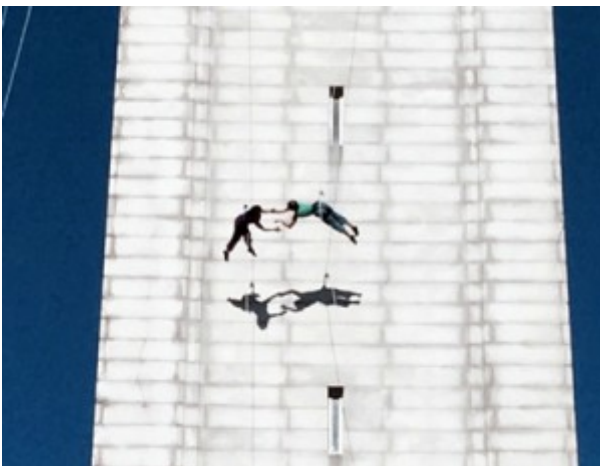

It was a fun little getaway!
