RACE TO THE END OF SUMMER 2015

SEPTEMBER 7, 2015 | ANNA

Yesterday (September 6, 2015) Dick and I ran in a race close to home, on a multi-use trail we run and walk on all the time. Coyote Creek, although completely dry now (as are almost all such waterways in California in this year of drought), is still a refuge for animals and birds, and a pleasant and offers a partly shady pathway for active humans. The race went well for us, and we're looking forward to the next one.
