

News from Nan

NEWS 'N' VIEWS, TRAVEL

MORE STORMS AND GIANT WAVES

JANUARY 23, 2017 | ANNA

Dick took the spectacular photo above.

Wet and wild weather continues to make headlines this month.

This past weekend (January 20-22) Dick and I drove down to Pacific Grove, our favorite “local” beach community on Monterey Bay, where entertainment included 35-foot waves and occasionally drenching rain and driving winds.

We ventured out between squalls and enjoyed (as always) walking the coastal trail, visiting the Monterey Bay Aquarium, and eating at several of our favorite local restaurants. The Arctic Char at Passionfish was especially good!

As we were returning from one of our walks, we spotted one of the largest cats we’ve ever seen! We thought it was a tame bobcat (it was wearing a collar and came running when its mistress called). Since then we wonder if it was a Maine coon cat, although its tail was not fluffy, as were the tails of the ones we found pictured on the web. We'll have to go back to Pacific Grove and take a closer look!

Waves at Lovers Point (Anna)

Wave at Pacific Grove (Dick)

Asilomar Beach (Anna)

Jellyfish (Dick)

Squid eating lunch (Anna)

Plant (Anna)

Tame bobcat? Maine coon cat? (Anna)

