CORONA DIARY #06: ESCAPE TO DAVIS

MAY 11, 2020 | ANNA

Dick in front of Kemper Hall on the UC Davis campus

We were feeling the cabin fever last week (April 30) and escaped to Davis (about 100 miles north of here) for a short walk around the University of California campus and a take-out lunch.

BREAKING NEWS : Our granddaughter Miranda just chose UC Davis to finish out the last years of her degree in computer science. Yay, Miranda!

Tips for travelers:

- Enjoy the lack of traffic while it lasts: We left at 8:00 am and drove at 70 mph the whole way – unheard of in “normal” times during the morning rush hour
- Locate (if you can) available bathrooms before leaving home – they are few and far between
- Wear old clothes, because you’ll be sure to spill take-out food on your shirt while “dining” in the back seat of your car
